

DEPUTIES REJECT PROPOSED CANON

Protestant Episcopal Body Votes Down Resolution on Remarriage of Divorcees.

WAS DEFEATED BY LAYMEN

ST. LOUIS, October 14.—Objections, which at times bordered on defiance, resulted in the rejection by the house of deputies of the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church here today of the proposal to embody in its canons a provision forbidding the clergyman to solemnize marriages for a person divorced from a living spouse. The question was regarded as one of momentous importance before the convention and the six hours' debate which preceded the action indicated wide difference of opinion among members of the church. The recommendation was contained in the report of a joint committee, composed of five bishops, five clergymen and five laymen, appointed three years ago to study matters relating to marriage. By its action, the lower house of the convention placed in abeyance for at least three years further consideration of the question. The present canon which forbids the clergyman to marry the "innocent party" to a divorce granted on statutory grounds.

Bishops to Vote Tuesday.

The proposal, however, is pending in the house of bishops, the upper house, and will be brought to vote next Tuesday. Such action will be merely for the purpose of indicating the attitude of the bishops, for no change in the canons can be made without concurrence of both houses.

Balloting on the amendment was by dioceses, and the line between the clerical and lay delegates was clear cut, the clergy voting to adopt the proposal and the laymen rejecting it. The proposal failed of adoption because of the nonconcurrence of the two diocesan delegations.

While the fight on the floor for the proposed innovation was led by Rev. Leighton Parks of New York, and the opposition headed by the Rev. R. H. McKim of Washington, perhaps the most spirited objections were voiced by the Rev. John Howard Melish of Brooklyn. "If you pass this law there are men in the church who will defy it and take the consequences," he said. "I should favor this resolution if it were merely a question of legislating for the rich."

Urges Passage of Resolution.

Dr. Parks said that nothing could be gained by retention of the present canon "except perpetuation of chaos and fraud." He urged that the passage of the resolution was necessary to protect the children.

"In the corrupt and adulterous generation let us go on record as setting the standards of the church in accord with the ideals of Jesus Christ," he said. Richard H. Dana of Cambridge, Mass., opposed the proposal on ritualistic grounds, quoting from the Episcopal marriage service: "I forsake all others and keep unto thee until death do part us." He described this phrase as a contract and said that if any part of the contract is broken it renders the whole void, and that if either the man or the woman does not "forsake all others," the "innocent party" has a right to remarry.

Rev. W. M. Grosvenor's Position.

Rev. William M. Grosvenor of New York said that previously he had opposed the new canon, but that he had been "converted."

"Today we have reached the point where the church, standing before the great American public, has got to stop quibbling," he said, "and cling to our ideal and adopt this resolution. I thought the clerical delegation at the convention attended a series of alumni dinners of the various theological institutions from which they were graduated. Tomorrow the delegates will occupy the Episcopal pulpits of St. Louis."

INCITING TO RIOT CHARGED IN BAYONNE STRIKE CASES

Arrests Made by Sixty Policemen in Motor Cars Based on Circulars Regarding Elizabeth Plant.

BAYONNE, N. J., October 14.—Sixty policemen in automobiles this afternoon entered the industrial strike zone and began arresting men found in possession of handbills which Standard Oil strikers and sympathizers have been distributing. The authorities said every man arrested would be charged with inciting to riot. Handbills, printed in three languages, urged the men who are idle because of the strike to adopt a peaceful attitude, and announced that the Standard Oil workers at Elizabeth, N. J., had struck. It was this last statement, which, according to the authorities, tended to inflame the local strikers and prolong the situation. A hundred men in Elizabeth walked out at the Bayway plant of the Standard Oil Company today, in sympathy with the Bayonne strikers. The plant then closed down, throwing 1,200 more men out of employment. There was no disorder.

WANTED TO SEE PRESIDENT.

Russian Is Sent to Hospital for Insane Instead.

Harry Zieger, thirty years old, a native of Russia, visited the Department of Agriculture yesterday afternoon and made it known that he wanted to see President Wilson, saying he had failed to get employment from other persons and was unable to enjoy the proper amount of protection to which he is entitled.

Zieger said he had worked in an ammunition factory in New Jersey, but was compelled to leave there because employees of another nationality scratched their noses, rubbed their heads and made faces at him. They threatened to report him to the Russian government, he said, and placed where he seeks employment he is given discharge slips.

He said he would not leave this city without seeing the President. "I want employment," he said, "and if I can see the President I'm going to ask him to give me a job looking after the post office." Sanitary Officer Lynn sent him to Washington Asylum Hospital for observation as to his mental condition.

GIVEN PRIVATE VIEW OF NEW BUILDINGS

300 STUDENTS ENROLLED

Hundreds of friends of the National School of Domestic Art and Science were guests at a private inspection yesterday afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock of the new home of that institution, which has just been opened at 2650 Wisconsin avenue northwest. Besides seeing the many buildings which have been erected during the last five months for the accommodation of the 300 young women who are to study there this fall and winter, visitors also were shown a model which depicted the future plans for additional buildings.

The present home of the institution consists of four dormitories, built with particular attention to making them comfortable, healthful and fireproof, and an administration building, which is to serve the school in its present capacity, however, only until such time as will be necessary for the planning and construction of a new and more adequate edifice. The dormitories are all new, but the administration building is a historic house which already occupied the site and was remodeled and refitted.

Overlooks the City.

Seven acres, situated so high that they overlook the entire city of Washington and the surrounding country for miles, comprise the site of the institution proper. Four additional acres were recently acquired, but so far have not been put into use. A stream which runs through this part of the property is to be dammed, a temporary building is to be erected, and the place used as a swimming pool. When the new administration building has been completed, with its swimming pool, auditorium and classrooms, the building will be removed from the pool, which will then be used as a skating rink in winter.

One of the features of the present administration building are the classrooms, which have been built in the lower part of it. There are three of them—a Chinese tea room, a rose tea room and an old Dutch chocolate room. They are snug, artistically fitted, well lighted and give promise of being popular with the students between classes.

All four dormitories are built on the same plan. The lower floor of each is given over to reception rooms, large living room, a dining room and kitchen on the first floor. Each building has its own color scheme carried out in the downstairs rooms and is fitted with furniture distinct from that in the neighbors. The furnishings range from those of the older times to more modern types, so that the students may have an opportunity to learn something of the furniture styles of different eras. Each house has its own library.

Quarters for the Faculty.

The second floor contains a suite for the member of the faculty who is responsible for that dormitory. On the second and third floors are suites for the young women students. Each suite consists of two bedrooms and a living room, a bath being between each two suites. Balconies lead from the living rooms. Two students are supposed to occupy each suite, but because of crowded conditions it will be necessary at present in a number of instances for three students to occupy a single suite.

The young women themselves market, cook and serve the table in the respective dormitories in which they are located. This is part of the general principle of education as applied in the institution.

One of the novel features which is to be installed later is a system of underground passages connecting the several dormitories and the administration building. By means of this the students will be enabled to travel from their rooms to classrooms without stopping to put on wraps in inclement weather.

Provision for Outdoor Sports.

Ample opportunity for outdoor sports is given by the open country surrounding the school and by five tennis courts and a basketball field on the grounds. The National School of Domestic Art and Science was founded in 1902 by Miss Mary Arline Zuhorst, its present head. In the spring of 1915 Charles Francis Wood, consulting engineer, formed a partnership with Miss Zuhorst. Mr. Wood had charge of the building of the institution's new home.
